

Pool designs for every backyard

Beach Entry

Lap Pool

Multiple Levels

Contemporary Flair

Vanishing Edge

Tropical Lagoon

Freeform

Perimeter Overflow

Tropical Lagoon

Michael Manley,
President
Champagne Pools & Spas,
an Aquatech Builder
Sanford, Fla.

Photo courtesy of Champagne Pools & Spas

There are several ways to achieve the tropical or natural lagoon look. Where a traditional or formal pool will have straight lines, the lagoon will be curved and freeform. Also, the materials will be different. From the beam to the waterline to larger waterfalls and grottos, tropical-style pools use a significant amount of stone or faux rockwork to create that natural look. If the clients want a paver deck, we'll usually point them toward a more rugged texture so that it all blends together. The design can also include multiple planting areas near the edge of the pool to complete the tropical look.

This style of pool works well in basically any type of backyard. It is especially popular for families with children. If the homeowners are looking for a way to entertain the kids, a tropical lagoon with a waterslide and waterfall grotto is the perfect fit.